Glendale appears to have succeeded in relocating USA Basketball to its sports district.

The City Council will vote Tuesday on a deal for a USA Basketball training facility, according to a notice posted late Friday.

The partners include USA Basketball, Midwestern University and Rightpath Limited Development Group.

USA Basketball trains a variety of players, including gold-winning Olympic teams. In March, the Colorado Springs-based group named Glendale a finalist in its relocation bid.

Midwestern University in north Glendale is the state's largest medical school.

Rightpath plans a mixed-use project with shops, offices, residential - and now a basketball facility - across from University of Phoenix Stadium. The notice put the site at Loop 101 and Maryland Avenue.
